

TRAILS
SIERRA ANCHA WILDERNESS

There is a network of “system” trails serving the Sierra Ancha Wilderness Area and contiguous areas. Their condition varies from satisfactory to very poor. All trails are closed to motor vehicles and mechanical transport such as bikes.

Use a great deal of caution when traveling on backcountry trails such as this one and be aware of the risks you assume.

A few brief comments are in order about the following trail:

Reynolds Creek 150: 3.7 miles in length. It climbs “Te switchbacks’ and traverses scenic Knoles Hole. A part outside the Wilderness was an old logging road. Some segments are brushy and hard to find. The southern end of this trail borders the privately-owned Murphy Ranch. Elevation: 6200 - 7600 feet. Difficulty level: Most Difficult. Use level: Light. Restrictions: Closed to all motorized equipment, bike or other mechanical transport. Trailheads: Murphy TH, and Reynolds TH.

No more than 15 people are allowed to be in a group. No more than 15 head of livestock are allowed in a group.
