

TRAILS
SUPERSTITION WILDERNESS

There is a network of some 170 miles of “system” trails serving the Superstition Wilderness Area and contiguous areas. Their condition varies from satisfactory to very poor. All trails are closed to motor vehicles and mechanical transport such as bikes.

Use a great deal of caution when traveling on backcountry trails such as this one and be aware of the risks you assume.

A few brief comments are in order about the following trail:

Black Mesa Trail 241: 3 miles long. Significant groves of cholla cactus. Interesting views of Superstition Mountain. This is an easy trail except for the last section that is rocky and steep in spots. Elevation: 2,270 - 2,750 feet. Termini: Trail 236, and Trail 104.
